Story Without the names

The last Adam, the red man will be standing redemptively in a place of another. The people of this earth are his possession. For the praise of God, he has come down to make a way. When he dies, there will be an outpouring. His death will be as a weapon. He is brought low that he may prove himself powerful. He will rest and be a resting place. His name will be famous among those who have been cut off and been bound by the enemy in the stronghold. He will call them his possession. He will come as a tender shoot as one from the Heavenly region. He will divide even the closest friends, he will be a branch burning with resolve. When he takes up residence here, He will be the father of a multitude or the chief of the mighty host. He laughs at the deceiver and supplanter and He overcomes. He shall be praised and the breach He will fortify, enclose, and wall in. He has exalted the royal seed who will crush the head of the hissing enchanter. He will be a covering and a garment. In him is strength He will come serving to make wealthy His beloved and bring peace and enlarge for Himself a people. He will say Jehovah is my father. He will be harmed, but then healed, hurt, but then made whole. It would be said that He, God has judged and He, God is exalted. He will prove the strength of God and the Perfection of God. He will possess in his hand the power of God. And though he is forgotten to of His people, He is the master builder, and divinely healed them. And, He, God will set and make strong those who ask of God. Those born in captivity. He will say, "My Father is majesty." He will be raised up by God to be a helper, to be the righteous one. God will raise him up for God's praise, majesty and splendor. He will be the help of God. A gift. And the heel-grabbing supplanter, He will exchange out life for death and bring us Jehovah's salvation. He will be a covering and a garment. And in him is strength, he will come serving to make wealthy, to make wealthy His beloved and give the gift of God. He declares to those who are under the enchantment, they are His dearest objects of care. He will raise them up. He will be the giver of Grace and give life in exchange for death. They will praise God and hearken unto him and join him in covenant. Those who receive the gift of God, the one whom God has exalted shall find help and salvation of God. They will be sustained by God. They will be quickened, made awake, and made alive. He will be measured according to the king's Divine oracles, He will be ordained as king. He will be a Heavenly light to all that ask of God. And those born in captivity, He will heal and give Grace. He shall be praised because He gives life in exchange for death. To those who hearken the good tidings, He gives the gift of God. Unto to the small, He is the bright light. Unto those whose eyes are fixed on God, He is a consolation and comfort. To the burden. He is the gift of God. He is life in exchange for death. The violent action of the king, He's in order to join in covenant with those who receive the gift of God. He raises up to heavenly heights and gives life in exchange for death, and rebellion, he overcomes and brings us God's salvation.
